FROM THE PREACHER'S DESK

February 18, 2024

I typically take this space to talk about things happening at Kingwood but today I also want to talk about passion. We have multiple ways to show our passion and by itself passion can be a very good thing if directed in the right place. Over the last few months, I have seen tons of passion about two specific things, Taylor Swift and politics! I'm not sure I have ever considered that I might put those two things in the same sentence but there you have it. Now, what's the point I want to make? The political rhetoric is nothing new. Everyone has an opinion, likes to share it, and if we are not careful will defend it so passionately that people with differing views are alienated. Sometimes those we alienate because of a differing view are our Brothers and Sisters in Christ. I witness great passion in the area of politics. This isn't something new as we have been a politically-divided country for a long time. It just seems that the disdain for "the other side" has never been louder. The Taylor Swift passion is new at least to football. Since she became a story this season due to a dating relationship, the passion has become heated from both sides of the spectrum. Some have passionately defended her right to be at the games, support her boyfriend, and so forth. Others have met the attention with a disdain and a passion to get her off the screen and quit making a big deal of it. At times, I have seen that passion boil over into full blown, unhealthy disagreements. What's my point? Well, here it is. I wonder what might happen if we felt the same passion for our God that we do about our politics, football, and Taylor Swift. Hmmmm....just something to think about this week!
